Introduction

The purpose of the development of the Nevada State Low and High Adult Secondary Education (ASE) Content Standards is to provide integrated educational experiences that will prepare students for success by providing essential academic skills required for life and required to pass the official GED tests. These content standards cover the major areas of academic instruction in reading, writing, mathematics, social studies, and science.

The ASE Social Studies Content Standards have been aligned to the Nevada K-12 standards to ensure that our adult learners have mastered the same content standards. These standards include essential skills that learners need to interpret history, demonstrate knowledge of our government, analyze economic relationships, and utilize geographical tools.

The sequence of the social studies standards includes both the low and high adult secondary education levels to accommodate instructors who may have combined levels in one class. Both levels of science are similarly organized: standards, indicators for each standard, suggested CASAS competencies that provide context for the standards and indicators, and customized program resources that have been aligned to the suggested CASAS competencies. CASAS competencies with an asterisk in front of the number indicate that the competency is tested in the CASAS assessments. Program resources in blue indicate that the program has resources. Program resources in red indicate that CASAS competency aligned resources were not found and, therefore, alternate resources were suggested.

NRS Low Adult Secondary Education Level 5 CASAS Advanced Adult Secondary Level D

CASAS scale scores: Reading: 236-245
Writing: 261-270
Math: 236-245

CASAS Assessments: LW 187, 188; ECS 17, 18; Functional Writing Assessment Picture Task, Forms 420 and 421

Secondary Assessments: D 505 & 506 Math; D 507 & 508 Economics; D 509 & 510 American Government; D 511 & 512 United States History; D 513 & 514 English/Language Arts; D 515 & 516 World History; D 529 & 530 Biological Science; D 531 & 532 Physical Science

CASAS Skill Level Descriptors:

Reading: Individuals at this level generally can perform tasks that involve written instructions in both familiar and unfamiliar situations. Other skills may include: reading and following multi-step directions; reading and interpreting manuals and legal forms; interpreting literary materials such as poetry and literature; creating and using tables and graphs; integrating information from multiple texts, charts, and graphs; evaluating and organizing information. They can also organize information and perform tasks that involve workplace communication skills.

Writing: Individuals at this level generally can perform writing tasks, such as most letters, logs, memos, and forms, with reasonable accuracy to meet most personal and employment-related needs. Other skills may include: taking notes from meetings and recorded messages; describing work or training procedures including basic safety directives, job aids, and maintenance instructions; stating personal and employment goals. Persons at this level generally are able to successfully complete the writing section of the Tests of General Educational Development (GED Tests).

Math: Individuals at this level generally can add, subtract, multiply, and divide whole numbers, fractions, and decimals. Other skills may include using mathematics in the workplace, such as calculating discounts; comparing prices to determine the best buys for goods and services; creating and using tables and graphs; computing standard measurement for length, width, perimeter, and area. They generally can organize, implement and perform multi-level calculations.

NOTE: GED Social Studies tests for comprehension, application, analysis, and evaluation using prose and visual sources within the areas of U.S. and World History, Civics and Government, Economics, and Geography.

SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARD: U.S. and World History

The student will demonstrate and apply the basic tools used in historical research. The student will exhibit the ability to collect, interpret, and employ information from historical materials. In addition, the student will recognize key historical places, events, documents, cultures and persons in world and United States history, and analyze their significance. Upon exiting the low adult secondary level, the student will:

*Passing the GED Test or High School Diploma are the only measures of level completion for High ASE Level 6.

CASAS Skill Level Descriptors:

Reading: Individuals functioning at this skill level are able to read most written material encountered in the workplace, including forms, work procedures, and personal manuals. They can interpret technical information, training materials, and some technical manuals. They can interpret computer-generated materials in the form of databases and spreadsheets. They can read articles on unfamiliar topics written in more complex language. They can comprehend some college textbooks and apprenticeship manuals.

Writing: Individuals at this level generally can perform writing tasks, such as most letters, logs, memos, and forms, with reasonable accuracy to meet most personal and employment-related needs. Other skills may include taking notes from meetings and recorded messages, describing work or training procedures including basic safety directives, job aids, and maintenance instructions, and stating personal and employment goals. Persons at this level generally are able to successfully complete the writing section of the tests of General Educational Development (GED).

Mathematics: Individuals functioning at skill level E are able to apply multi-step operations involving percents; apply proportion and ratio; use decimal time; apply formulas to determine volume; devise formulas. They can apply these skills to: compare quantities such as changes in sales and production totals; compare relative quantities of material resources used; interpret and record time in decimal format (e.g. 1.4 hours); calculate volume of material required or used in manufacturing or construction; devise algebraic formulas to facilitate calculations.

NOTE: GED Social Studies tests for comprehension, application, analysis, and evaluation using prose and visual sources within the areas of U.S. and World History, Civics and Government, Economics, and Geography.

SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARD: U.S. and World History

The student will demonstrate and apply the basic tools of historical research, including chronology and how to collect, interpret, and employ information from historical materials. Additionally, the student will recognize key historical places, events, documents, cultures and persons in world and United States history, and analyze their significant patterns, themes, ideas, and interrelationships. Upon exiting the high adult secondary level, the student will:
